WHAT THEY'RE SAYING ABOUT DOG FORTÉ

A CHAMPION COON DOG: AS has been using DOG FORTÉ regularly. He won second place and $8000 in a recent national coon hunt. AS says, "DOG FORTÉ gives dogs the energy boost they need to win."

PUTTING DOG FORTÉ TO THE TEST: A Walker may run 8 to 10 hours during a typical coyote hunt. A 45-pound dog will commonly lose 1 to 1.5 pounds during that day. To test DOG FORTÉ, JA provided each test dog with 1/2 ounce of DOG FORTÉ before the run, and 1 ounce after, each mixed into one lb. of water. Dog food (approximately 3000 calories) was given to all the dogs after the run. The time to recover for test dogs was compared with dogs in the same pack offered plain water. JA reported that Walkers supplied DOG FORTÉ had fully recovered their lost body weight in 30 hours. The dogs not given DOG FORTÉ required an additional day to regain their pre-hunt weight. JA said DOG FORTÉ is very good for rehydration and providing an energy boost.

MILKING LIKE A COW: JO, a DVM, had a client whose miniature Pinscher had 10 pups, but was unable to raise any of them due to low milk production. On her second litter, the same thing happened, they all had to be bottle-raised. On her third litter, they had to do a C-section. JO suggested the client try DOG FORTÉ during her recovery. She ate it so well that they decided to continue during the lactation. This time she raised all 10 puppies without any assistance. The owner remarked, "That little dog milked like a Jersey cow."

POPSICLES FOR SLED DOGS: Even if they're not thirsty before a run, sled dogs perform better if they are hydrated. Because the dogs find it hard to resist, GA uses DOG FORTÉ as a water-bait 1.5 to 2 hours before a run. He also freezes it into ice cubes for treats to be given after a run (1 scoop DOG FORTÉ per 2 cups of water).

STUD DOG: BU gives DOG FORTÉ regularly to his stud that both breeds twice a week and hunts to keep in shape. At 10 years old, the dog still looks great and has maintained his semen count. He's fed 2 tablespoons of DOG FORTÉ per day. BU also feeds DOG FORTÉ to his other dogs, because it "gives them a good appetite."

HELP FOR A SICK DOG: One of CH's dogs was acting sick and would not eat. By the third day, the dog would not even move. CH was ready to load her up and head for the Vet. A friend who'd used DOG FORTÉ to help his dogs get over a long truck ride to a hunt gave CH a sample to try. He put a scoop of DOG FORTÉ in some water and offered it to the sick dog. She immediately drank all that was in the bowl. A little later she went ahead and ate her food. The next day the dog was eating normally and doing fine.

PUPPIES JUST WEANED AND WORMED: CH mentioned another dog owner that had 9 puppies that had just been weaned and wormed. One had died and the rest were very sick - possibly a reaction to the wormer. They wouldn't eat or drink, and the owner was concerned that the entire litter would die. He put 1/2 scoop of DOG FORTÉ in a big bowl of water. One pup tried it; then they all joined in. After they finished it off, they started eating and were all doing fine by the next day.

WHEN THE HEAT GOT TO THE COON DOGS: It was hot and the coon dogs had suffered from a long ride in the truck. A hunter complained that one of his dogs had not eaten anything for three days. DO said, "Try some of this DOG FORTÉ." The hunter mixed some DOG FORTÉ in water and offered it to the dog. She "lapped it right up" and then went ahead and ate her dog food.

YEAR-ROUND TO MAINTAIN WEIGHT: Keeping his sled dogs hydrated is always a problem, so GE adds a small amount of DOG FORTÉ to water to get the dogs to drink more. He sprinkles some on their dog food, too. Many of his crossbreed dogs also have problems maintaining their weight. Regular dog food "just seems to shoot right through them." Because DOG FORTÉ is so digestible, GE has been top-dressing it year round on their regular food.

COON DOGS KNOW WHAT THEY LIKE: Between coon hunts, MI stored some 1 pound jars of DOG FORTÉ at home. When he wasn't watching, his dogs sniffed three jars out, ripped them open, and ate the contents. Said MI's wife, "They're well-fortified now!"
